The number of advertisements printed in THE WORLD during the month of August was 59,716. The gain over the number printed in August, 1889, was 11,661. The largest number which appeared in any other New York newspaper last month was 38,871. The number of columns of advertising in THE WORLD during August was 1,447, which is 61 per cent. more than its nearest competitor contained in the same period. It is noticeable that not only does THE WORLD print more and more advertising each year, but that its lead over all competitors increases constantly.

LABOR DAY.

The object of a parade is to honor some person or event, or else to present to the public eye a body whose wish is to secure for itself the respect which dignity and numbers may command. The parade on Labor Day is for this purpose, and as such is perfectly proper. One day in the year the men who work gather and march rth in lines before the public in legitimate self-assertion

One thing which to day's parade sug gests is to be regretted by all who have the success of labor at heart. The strength of labor depends essentially on its organigation as a solid unit. Never is the saying that in union there is strength truer than in regard to the working men.

Two Labor organizations will march to-day in avowed rivalry. The Central Labor Union and the Labor Federation are so far divided in spirit as to antagon ine each other. This is bad. Labor ough to have enough in view in which every workingman may feel the same interest to bind all who labor together by a common bond.

But, on the other hand, there is some ustification for this division if it is due to Socialistic and anti-Socialistic senti ments. Socialism is something which should find no footing on American soil. Where freedom is accorded to all justice should be able to make energetic and effective protest without employing any measures which every reasonable American may not approve. Socialistic meas ures do not commend themselves to sturdy Americans.

AMERICANS ABROAD.

The exodus from this country to Europe of July. The Americans who go to Europe in the Summer are now of such different degrees as the millionaire and the clerk, the society woman and the rural school-teacher. This accounts for the difference in time of departure.

But the great mass of these transatlantic travellers return about the same time The practical year begins with the early days of Autumn, and hence, at this eason, the return tide sets in. The consequence is that the steamers are over- as Pierre Monwell, came here three crowded, and many have to prolong their stay abroad simply because they cannot secure accommodations at the time they says a Kansas City despatch to the Chicago wish. The wise thing is to book for the Acus. return voyage, as a stateroom can be easily given up.

M. DE GIFES, the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, talks in a serene and autiful way about the relations between that Russia and Germany, and the peace of Europe in general. The Kaiser does not seem to be as much of a firebrand as he was thought at first, but diplomats are given to a deceptive use of words.

Autumn lost no time in getting in its proper meteorological tone. Yesterday was more than delightfully cool at the resorts. To-day is as fine a one as could be desired, especially by the Labor men.

Beven fires within a small area in Brook-lyn in one night is startling. Playful in-cendiarism is not a phase of humor which can be lightly considered. The by no means remote possibility of women or children being burned to death where a house is fired forbids any tolerance of the singularly constructed being who puts flery jokers.
